We've a Big Line of Comfort Clothes for Men.

You know what we mean—the unlined Serges, Flannels and Worsteds, those dressy, dapper suits that are weightless and cool. To go into detail we'd have to describe fifty or more styles. That's twice as many as you'll find in any other store in town. But bigness is not the only advantage of our stock of tropical clothing. In the matters of tailoring and distinctiveness it stands out as pre-eminently best. Many of the fabrics were woven expressly for us. Those that were not are confined to us exclusively. Being expertly tailored, they overcome that objection you've had reason to make to the average negligé suit purchased elsewhere, namely: of not holding its shape. Ours will. They'll be satisfactory in every way. Accept that as a guarantee between us. Our comfort suits range in price from $10.00 to $30.00.

Boys' Wash Suits at 1/3 off.

Our entire stock of Boys' Wash Suits, excepting the Peter Thompson Style, at one-third off regular price.

DEATH OF MIDSHIPMAN

Cruse Succumbs to Injuries in Battleship Disaster.

MAKES THE TENTH VICTIM

Condition of Others Reported to Navy Department.

CAPT. MCCREA'S STATEMENT

Identity of the Heroic Gunner Who

Stayed at His Post and Did His Duty Disclosed.

Turret Captain Buried.
 WILMINGTON, Del., July 18.—Impressive funeral services, including a solemn requiem mass, were held in St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church here today over the remains of William J. Thatcher, the young turret captain of the battleship Georgia, who was one of the victims of the explosion which occurred on board the ship last Monday.

Reports of the Department.
 The condition of the injured men of the Georgia now in the Chelsea Naval Hospital was reported to the Navy Department this morning as follows:
 "Midshipman Cruse is not gaining ground, extremely critical; nose worse; Gilbert extremely serious; Bush, Malek, Fone and Thomas are better; Schlapp, Rosenberg and Tagland doing very well."
 A dispatch received at the Navy Department later in the day regarding the condition of the injured of the Georgia was as follows:
 "Midshipman Cruse, outlook very unfavorable; temperature, 105.6-10; pulse, 150; heart weakening; Meese, condition extremely critical; very slight improvement; no Gilbert, critical, but hopeful; Bush, Fone, Malek and James Patrick Thomas, still serious, but improving; Schlapp, Tagland, Rosenberg, doing very well."

Report From Capt. McCrea.
 The following telegram from Capt. McCrea of the battleship Georgia, dated yesterday, has been made public at the Navy Department:

"Telegram expressing grief over unfortunate accident to the Georgia received and published. All are gratified with sympathy expressed, and our prayers for recovery. Reports were sent through Admiral Thomas, which will be supplemented by report of board.
 "Meanwhile no individual case of great heroism which saved this ship has been known. The handling room crew responded immediately to the orders of the officers in command. Robert C. Murray, closing the doors, removing exposed charges and dousing the burning powder which fell from the turret, did the right thing at the right time and steadied his men."

The Hero Identified.
 Notwithstanding Capt. McCrea's statement, the expression attributed to him in an interview in which he praised the act of one gunner has made a hero of Benjamin Kreiger, or "George Miller," as he stood on the ship's bow.

Sergeant Miller was the loader of the port gun. It had 108 pounds of powder in it, just the same as the starboard gun, where the fire started. The powder in the port gun, the powder not having been fitted in when the flash came.

The young seaman and one other man stood by the second gun which had just been loaded. The last powder bag that had been put in was protruding a little from the gun. When he saw the flash, instead of dashing for the ladder to save himself, he crowded home the charge in the gun, and with the help of the other man got the gun closed tight before the flames reached the bag.

Capt. McCrea is reported as saying: "The hero of the disaster, the man who would have been an awful explosion, for the powder was confined in the gun and would not have flashed as the other did, but would have been left alive, whatever other damage might have been done. That man saved his life and the ship's life."
 Kreiger was eighteen years old and ran away from his home last February and enlisted at the Brooklyn navy yard, giving his name as George Miller of Memphis, and stating that he had no home and no living relatives.
 To some of his shipmates he confessed that he was the son of a man who had written to his father in Brooklyn, but had received no reply.

The Navy Department will make an effort to locate the family of the young man. Meantime the body of "Seaman Miller" will be interred with naval honors at Boston, and should the "hero" of the disaster will have the privilege of disinterring the body.

Ambassador Bryce's Condolence.
 The acting secretary of the navy has received a telegram of condolence from Mr. Bryce, the British ambassador, at intervals, N. H., as follows:

"Pray accept expression of deep sympathy over sad loss of valuable lives United States steamship Georgia."

GREEN LIGHT INDISTINCT.
 Capt. Hubbard's Perilous Experience in a Steam Launch.

Capt. Hubbard of the battleship Minnesota has reported to Acting Secretary Newberry of the navy that he personally has had an experience in his steam launch very much like that which occurred in the case of a launch of the same battleship about six weeks ago when a number of the ship's men lost their lives in Hampton roads.

Because the green light on the barge which was towing the launch was almost invisible in the thick weather, another launch belonging to one of the Atlantic fleet had a similar experience, also reporting that the launch was towed by a tugboat. Acting Secretary Newberry has sent these communications to Superintendent Ulmer of the steamboat inspection service asking him whether the regulations cannot be amended so as to require these tows to have lights strong enough to insure safety for other craft.

Schools to Supersede Parents?
 From the New York World.

The Boston school committee has decided to appoint twenty-one women nurses to serve under a supervisor and to be in charge of all the pupils in the public schools. The physicians who for several years have investigated all cases of illness and seen to the quarantining of children exposed to contagion, will be retained and will direct the nurses. The new scheme, which will cost $25,000 a year, is to go into effect in September.

Not content with this innovation, J. Randolph Coolidge, one of the most prominent citizens of Boston, thinks the committee should revolutionize the present grammar school system. He would have the grammar schools relocated near the city parks, the children kept at school all day, giving them transportation from home to school and back again at public expense, would eliminate home studies and have the play of the children supervised by the school authorities.

There are mothers, glad to see their children at the noon recess, who would regard with suspicion the children at school all day and supervision of their play as calculated to weaken home influence.

If government regulation of children is to be carried much further, parents will be left to pay the bills for their children's food and clothing while strangers will "bring up" the youngsters for them.

CELEBRATED THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING.

THE WORLD OF SOCIETY

A GOLDEN WEDDING WITH UNUSUALLY HAPPY FEATURES.

Engagement of a Former Washington Belle—Other Events—Personal Notes.

A golden wedding of great interest to Lutherans was that celebrated Wednesday by the Rev. John Henry Doermann, a retired Lutheran pastor, and Mrs. Doermann, at their residence near Manassas, Va. Three Mr. Doermann's sons, 17, sons-in-law, one grandson, and the husband of a granddaughter are clergymen in the Evangelical Lutheran Church, while Mrs. Doermann's brother and the husband of her only living sister are in the same ministry. Mr. and Mrs. Doermann have eight children, twenty-five grandchildren and three great-grandchildren, and are themselves hale and hearty, the half of each being hardly touched with gray, although Mr. Doermann has a white beard.

Mr. Doermann was born in Germany in April, 1832, and came to this country when a boy, his father settling in Missouri. He studied theology at Fort Wayne, Ind., under Dr. Shiller and Prof. Craenon, pioneer theologian in that country of the Lutheran Evangelical Church, and entered the ministry in 1856. His first charge was in New York state, near Buffalo, where he married Miss Mary Alward, who also had come from Germany when a child, having been born there December 25, 1838. The couple were married July 17, 1867.

After leaving New York state Mr. Doermann had a church in Randolph county, Ill., then one at Yorkville, in the same state, and afterwards went to Blue Island, near Chicago, where he had a long pastorate, resigning a few years ago to retire to his home near Manassas. He was succeeded at Blue Island by his oldest son, Henry K., who, in turn, was succeeded by his youngest brother, Martin, the present pastor.

The sons are Henry K., professor of theology at the Norwegian Seminary, St. Paul, Minn.; John E. A., pastor of the Grace Evangelical Lutheran Church, Washington; August W., for seventeen years a teacher in a Lutheran school, now retired, and Chester, pastor of the Lutheran Church at Blue Island, Ill.

The daughters are Mrs. John Strassen, wife of a Lutheran pastor at Milwaukee, Wis.; Mrs. A. Schmidt, well-known as a clergyman at Crestline, Ohio; Mrs. Strassen's son John is in charge of a church at Middletown, Conn., and her daughter is a clergyman at Jacksonville, Ill.
 Mrs. Doermann's sister is the wife of the Rev. Dr. A. Schmidt, well-known as a theologian in the northwest, a professor in the Norwegian Seminary of St. Paul, where his nephew, Henry K. Doermann, is a member of the faculty. Mrs. Doermann's brother is the Rev. Dr. H. A. Allward of Lebanon, Wis.

At the house in Manassas the celebration of the golden wedding was conducted by the oldest son, Henry K. Doermann, who delivered an address after religious exercises. The house was decorated with yellow flowers. Nearly all the members of the family were present, although a few were prevented by illness. Many telegrams and letters of congratulation were received from all parts of the country.

HEAT CLAIMS 3,000 VICTIMS.

Unprecedented Number of Prostrations at Philadelphia Yesterday.

PHILADELPHIA, July 18.—Philadelphia passed through a heat experience yesterday without recorded parallel. In a few hours 3,000 persons, mostly spectators of the Elks' parade, but some participants, sank in heat exhaustion along Broad street. The estimate by the chief police surgeon, who had charge of the police and hospital relief corps, includes only at hospitals or ambulance required treatment at hospitals or ambulance. Many cases of milder form, relieved at drug stores, escaped police notice. By far the greater portions of prostrations were of women, but the most serious cases were of men, because they did not give up till they had to. Some children also succumbed.

The prompt relief, which probably saved many lives, is attributed in large measure to prompt action. So excellent was the system of aid and relief that hardly had the commotion subsided which marked a prostration than the clang was heard of ambulance or patrol wagon coming at full gallop with relief. A moment's halt and it was off, with the sufferer aboard, at the name dashing speed to the nearest hospital.

Never has there been such a wholesale prostration of people in this city. For six hours the police, ambulance surgeons and the Red Cross nurses were kept on the run looking after persons who collapsed under the scorching rays of the sun, and who because of their excellent service but two cases resulted fatally. James Rowley, aged forty-four years of this city, died in a hospital after being stricken in the street. The other stricken persons are said to be in good condition, with no prospect of fatal results.

The parade ground was on Broad street for a distance of nearly a mile. In the same distance south of the city hall. The paraders counter-marched the last three miles back to the city hall, where they traversed upward of nine miles, yet few of those overcome by the heat were in the line of march.

Those who succumbed were among the spectators jammed along the street in a solid mass from one end of the line to the other. The temperature hovered around ninety degrees and the humidity was excessive, and as a consequence people sweated.

The other victims were chiefly from this city and the surrounding territory. The police surgeons and ambulance men, however, had been in the line of duty for many hours, and the police surgeons and nurses cared for innumerable others.
